Utility Commission update:
Due to the timing of appointing and swearing in of City Council members, this is the final meeting for the Utility Commission for this year. Wastewater Collections and COVID-19:
Director Yasutake reported that various wastewater agencies are participating in studies that analyze wastewater streams looking for potential correlation with COVID-19 cases experienced in the local area. Regional Sanitation is participating locally as associated samples are usually taken from Wastewater Treatment Plants. This is a relatively new field of study so more information can be brought to the Commission when available.

Director Yasutake reported that City of Folsom employees involved in wastewater collection work have had the opportunity to participate in various webinars hosted by various wastewater agencies that provide training regarding safety, PPE and daily operations. It is noted that, based on the information from these webinars, there have not been any cases of COVID-19 related to work in the wastewater collection industry in this region.

SUBJECT: BROWN ACT

BACKGROUND

The Brown Act states that the public commissions, boards and councils and the other public agencies in this State exist to aid in the conduct of the people’s business. It is the intent of the law that their actions be taken openly and that their deliberations be conducted openly. All meetings of the legislative body of a local agency shall be open and public, and all persons shall be permitted to attend any meeting of the legislative body of a local agency, except as otherwise provided in the Brown Act. Attached is League of California Cities Guide to the Brown Act.

DISCUSSION

The Brown Act covers members of virtually every type of local government body, elected or appointed, decision-making or advisory. Some types of private organizations are covered, as are newly-elected members of a legislative body, even before they take office. Similarly, meetings subject to the Brown Act are not limited to face-to-face gatherings. They also include any communication medium or device through which a majority of a legislative body discusses, deliberates or takes action on an item of business outside of a noticed meeting. They include meetings held from remote locations by teleconference.

New communication technologies present new Brown Act challenges. For example, common email practices of forwarding or replying to messages can easily lead to a serial meeting prohibited by the Brown Act, as can participation by members of a legislative body in an internet chatroom or blog dialogue. Communicating during meetings using electronic technology (such as laptop computers, tablets, or smart phones) may create the perception that private communications are influencing the outcome of decisions; some state legislatures have banned the practice.

The express purpose of the Brown Act is to assure that local government agencies conduct the public’s business openly and publicly. Courts and the California Attorney General usually broadly construe the Brown Act in favor of greater public access and narrowly construe exemptions to its general rules.
The Brown Act, however, is limited to meetings among a majority of the members of multimember government bodies when the subject relates to local agency business. It does not apply to independent conduct of individual decision-makers. It does not apply to social, ceremonial, educational, and other gatherings as long as a majority of the members of a body do not discuss issues related to their local agency’s business. Meetings of temporary advisory committees — as distinguished from standing committees — made up solely of less than a quorum of a legislative body are not subject to the Brown Act.
